Vienna, July 8.

Some Symptoms of Amendment have appeared in the Emperor's Health. His Imperial Majesty is not yet entirely free from Fever, which has intermitted, and from the Observation of the last Six Weeks, it has been found to return regularly every eighth Day, and to continue for about Thirty-six Hours. He has however resumed his Walks in the Gardens at Laxembourg, and passes a great Part of the Day in the open Air.

Paris, July 17.

On Sunday last, on receiving the News of the Dismission of M. Necker, and a Body of Troops entering this City, the Populace began to arm themselves, and were immediately joined by the French Guards. In the Evening a slight Skirmish happened in the Place de Louis XV. in which Two Dragoons of the Duc de Choiseul's Regiment were killed, and Two wounded. After which all the Troops left the Capital.

Very early on Monday Morning the Populace forced the Convent of St. Lazare, in which, besides a considerable Quantity of Corn, were found Arms and Ammunition, supposed to have been conveyed thither, as a Place of Security, at different Times, from the Arsenal. The Bourgeoisie came to the Resolution of raising a Militia of Forty-eight Thousand Men. A general Consternation prevailed throughout the Town. All the Shops were shut; all public and private Employments at a Stand, and scarcely a Person to be seen in the Streets, except the armed Burghers, who acted as a temporary Police for the Protection of private Property, to replace the established one, which had no longer any Influence.

On Tuesday Morning the Hospital of Invalids was summoned to surrender, and was taken Possession of, after a slight Resistance. All the Cannon, Small Arms and Ammunition were immediately seized upon, and every one who chose to arm himself was supplied with what was necessary. The Cannon was distributed in different Quarters of the Town. In the Evening a Detachment with Two Pieces of Cannon went to the Bastille, to demand the Ammunition deposited there. A Flag of Truce had been sent before them, which was answered from within: But nevertheless, the Governor (the Marquis de Launay) ordered the Guard to fire, and several were killed. The Populace, enraged at this Proceeding, rushed forward to the Assault, when the Governor agreed to admit a certain Number, on Condition that they should not commit any Violence. A Detachment of about Forty accordingly passed the Drawbridge, which was instantly drawn up, and the whole Party massacred. This Breach of Faith, aggravated by so glaring an Instance of Inhumanity, naturally excited a Spirit of Revenge and Tumult not to be appeased. A Breach was soon made in the Gate, and the Fortrefs surrendered. The Governor, the principal Gunner, the jailer, and Two old Invalids, who had been noticed as being more active than the Rest, were seized, and carried before the Council assembled at the Hotel de Ville, by whom the Marquis de Launay was sentenced to be beheaded, which was accordingly put in Execution at the Place de Grève, and the other Prisoners were also put to Death. The Prevôt des Marchands met with a similar Fate, being suspected of betraying the Citizens; and the Heads of these Persons were fixed on Pikes, and carried round the City.

In the Course of the same Evening, the whole of the Gardes Françaises joined the Bourgeoisie, with all their Cannon, Arms and Ammunition.

Not more than Four or Five Prisoners were found in the Bastille.

On Wednesday last the King repaired to the Assembly of the States General at Versailles, accompanied panied only by Monsieur, and the Count d'Artois, and addressed the States in a Speech, in which his Majesty exhorted them to provide the Means of restoring Order and Tranquillity, and to assist him in securing the Welfare of the State; and his Majesty acquainted them that, relying on the Affection and Fidelity of his Subjects, he had ordered the Troops to retire to a certain Distance from Paris and Versailles.

This Speech was received with universal Applause, and his Majesty returned to his Apartments, attended by all the Deputies of the Nation, amidst the Acclamations of an innumerable Concourse of People. The National Assembly immediately sent a Deputation to the General Assembly of the Electors at the Hotel de Ville, to acquaint them with the above-mentioned Proceedings.

The Army, in Pursuance of the King's Orders, retired to Séve early on Wednesday Morning, leaving their Camp Equipage behind them.

The Marquis de la Fayette has been appointed Commander in Chief of the Paris Militia, and M. Bailly Prevôt de Marchands.

This Afternoon, at about Half an Hour after Two o'Clock, his Majesty entered Paris in a Coach drawn by Eight Horses, attended by the Duc de Villeroy, Captain of the Life Guards, the Duc de Villequier, First Gentleman of the Bedchamber, the Marshal de Beauvau, the Count D'Estaing, and Two Equerries, followed by another Coach, in which were Four other Attendants, and escorted only by the City Militia, the Commandant of which rode a little before the King's Coach, accompanied by several of the principal Tradesmen of Paris. The whole Way from the Entrance at the Barrier at Passy to the Hotel de Ville was lined on each Side with armed Citizens, and the most perfect Tranquillity was observed. After his Majesty had entered the Hotel de Ville, he declared that he appeared there to gratify the Wishes of the Citizens of Paris, and to assure them of his Readiness to do every Thing in his Power to quiet their Minds, and restore Tranquillity to the City. On his Majesty's Return he received every Testimony of Loyalty and Affection from a most numerous and orderly Population; and it is computed that this Day there were not less than 150,000 Men bearing Arms in Paris.

His Majesty has dismissed all his new confidential Servants, excepting M. de la Galisiere, and has sent to recall M. Necker, who is expected to arrive To-morrow, if he is not already at Versailles.
